Ms. Ikeda : You looked tired in class this morning. Are you OK, Kenji?

Kenji : I'm OK now. Thank you for about me. I usually get up at seven, but I could not get up at that time. I practiced today's English speech until late last night. So I didn't have breakfast.

Mr. Davis : Oh, I see. Your speech was wonderful, but you didn't look well. So Ms. Ikeda and I were talking about you. We know you are studying harder than before. Do you sometimes study until late at night?

Kenji : Yes, sometimes.

Yutaka : You should sleep more and have breakfast.

Ms. Ikeda : That's right. I always say you should go to bed early, get up early and eat breakfast.

Mr. Davis : The early bird *catches the worm. Do you know what this means?

Kenji : No, I don't. What does it mean?

Mr. Davis : Getting up early will help you in many ways. For example, it will help your studies.

Kenji : That's true. I was hungry, so I could not *concentrate in class this morning.

Mr. Davis : I don't have enough time to eat breakfast sometimes, but I try to eat some fruit.

Yutaka : Mr. Davis, [fruit / of / what / you / like / kind / do]?

Mr. Davis : I like apples the best. How about you, Yutaka?

Yutaka : I like bananas and apples. When you eat bananas, they will give you *energy fast. Apples are also good. I hear that by eating one apple every day, you will not need to see a doctor.

Ms. Ikeda :

Yutaka : My sister studies *nutrition at university and sometimes tells me about her classes. She always eats breakfast with fruit.

Mr. Davis : How about you, Kenji? Do you like fruit too?

Kenji : I also like bananas. Japan *imports a lot of bananas from other countries. Now I am learning about *globalization in social studies class. My social studies teacher gave us homework, so I went to the *supermarket and looked at foods there. I found many foods from foreign countries.

Mr. Davis : You two are great students. We can learn about a lot of things from fruit. Yutaka, can you make an English speech about fruit and nutrition in class next week?

Yutaka : Sure. I have to study more about them.

Ms. Ikeda : Kenji, you made a good speech today. Now, how about writing an *essay? Our city is having an essay *contest now. The *title is "Globalization and the Future of Japan." You can write about the things you learned in social studies class.

Kenji : Writing an essay? It sounds difficult.

Mr. Davis : I believe you can do it! I will help you.

Kenji : OK. I'll try. I'm interested in globalization.

Yutaka : But you should not write it late at night.

Mr. Davis : Yutaka is right. Remember the things Ms. Ikeda always says.

Kenji : I'll try to be an early bird and write my essay before going to school.

4 次の英文を読んで、問1～問4に答えなさい。*印のついている語句には、本文のあとに[注]があります。(26点)

Mayumi and Ayako are students at Nishi Junior High School, and they are good friends. One day in May they met at the station to do some shopping. They saw a new building by the station and some new shops on the first floor. They also saw that there weren't any more cherry trees in front of the station. Mayumi said, "Shopping at the new stores will be fun, but..." Ayako said, "We can't see the cherry blossoms next year."

A few days later, when Mayumi and Ayako were on their way home from school, they saw that some trees were *cut down in a small forest. They stopped walking, and then Mayumi said, "On the way to school this morning, these trees were a part of the small forest." Ayako said, "Today someone cut down these trees. I think more trees will be cut down." Mayumi said, "I think so too." She almost cried. She remembered seeing the beautiful trees in spring, *catching insects in summer and *picking up acorns in fall with Ayako and other friends. She liked the small forest very much.

The next day Mayumi talked to Mr. Ogawa at school. He was her science teacher. She talked to him about the cherry trees and the small forest. Mr. Ogawa understood how she felt. He said, "I think there are some *reasons for cutting down trees." Then he told her about the ideas of *sustainable *development and a sustainable *society. He thought she would be interested in them. She asked him to tell her more. He said, "Development is needed, but we also need to think about the environment for our future and our children's future." Mayumi thought it was a good idea, but she didn't know what to do. He said, "We should keep thinking about a sustainable society. We also should do something for the environment. There are many easy things we can do for the environment. For example, we can *turn off switches to *conserve electricity. Also I'm *growing *morning glories to make a *green curtain. You should begin with easy things you can do for the environment." She became interested.

After school Mayumi and Ayako went back home together. Mayumi told Ayako about talking with Mr. Ogawa. Ayako asked, "What is a green curtain?" Mayumi answered, "A green curtain *makes shade with plants like morning glories. It can make rooms cooler in summer, so we can conserve electricity." Ayako said, "I want to make green curtains at my house." Mayumi said, "Me too. Tomorrow let's talk about green curtains with our classmates. I want to make them at school too." Ayako said, "That's a good idea. Our classmates will like our ideas." Then Ayako told Mayumi about last night's TV news. Ayako said, "Some volunteers were *planting young trees by the river. I want to do volunteer work when I start high school." Mayumi thought that was a good idea too, so she said, "When we start high school, let's do something for the environment as volunteers and learn more about it." Ayako said, "Let's do it!"

- [注] cut……cut～(～を切る)の過去分詞形 catch insects……虫をつかまえる
pick up acorns……どんぐりを拾う reason……理由 sustainable……持続可能な development……開発 society……社会 turn off switches……スイッチを切る conserve electricity……電気を節約する grow～……～を育てる
